

2023
NEXT GEN-RX
AWARD FINALISTS

Jaylan Hayes

Professional Bio

Jaylan Hayes, although a new practitioner, has become a cornerstone for the geriatric interdisciplinary team at Upstate Community Hospital in Syracuse, NY. From her daily practice managing patients' medications to managing the geriatric pharmacy subcommittee, her passion for the older adult is evident. At the hospital, Jaylan has been instrumental in policy changes, order set development and expanding geriatric services.

While Jaylan has only graduated recently as a PGY-2 Geriatric Pharmacy Resident in 2022, her multiple publications and presentations already completed well establish her ongoing dedication to improving geriatric pharmacotherapy. While Jaylan's study on haloperidol dosing has received local and national attention, she looks forward to being the principal investigator on a blinded study of pharmacotherapeutic sedation in the emergency department.

Jaylan also enjoys teaching and continues to be involved in the PGY-2 Geriatric Pharmacy residency program as a mentor and preceptor. She has also taken on the role as Capstone Coordinator for 5 pharmacy students at Binghamton University.

Being nominated for this award is an honor for Jaylan and being a part of a group who cares so deeply about older adults has been an amazing experience.